Cost of hospitals under review

St. Joseph's is looking for ways to cut $270,000 from local expenses

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The operating costs of Haliburton County's two small hospitals are under close scrutiny, and cost cutting measures could be announced next month.

The Minden and Haliburton Hospitals are operated by St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough, and have a estimated combined deficit of $270,000 for 1992.

Frank Lussing, St. Joseph's executive director, says the hospital is trying to reduce the cost of operating the two small satellite facilities.

"There are going to be changes but nothing draconian - nothing the public would notice," he said. "We're just looking at doing things somewhat differently."

Washout charges dismissed

by Susan Grober

A judge has dismissed charges against two local men accused of allowing silt from a Main Street excavation site wash into the Gull River.

Judge George Inrig dismissed the charges against Brad Bradamore and Larry Hughes last Thursday in Lindsay Provincial Court.

The pair were charged in March of 1990 by the Ministry of Natural Resources under the Fisheries Act for permitting material which could endanger spawning areas to enter the river.

"We collected the evidence, and felt we had enough to warrant a charge, but the court decided to dismiss the case," Stan Flemming, Fish and Wildlife Supervisor with the ministry, told The Times on Friday. "We're not really happy about that, obviously."

The ministry laid the charges, claiming a washout which occurred at the downtown development site sent a large amount of silt and clay down McKnight Drive, through a marshy area, and into the Gull River.

Bradamore was the owner and developer of the property, and Hughes was the contractor who had been working on the site.

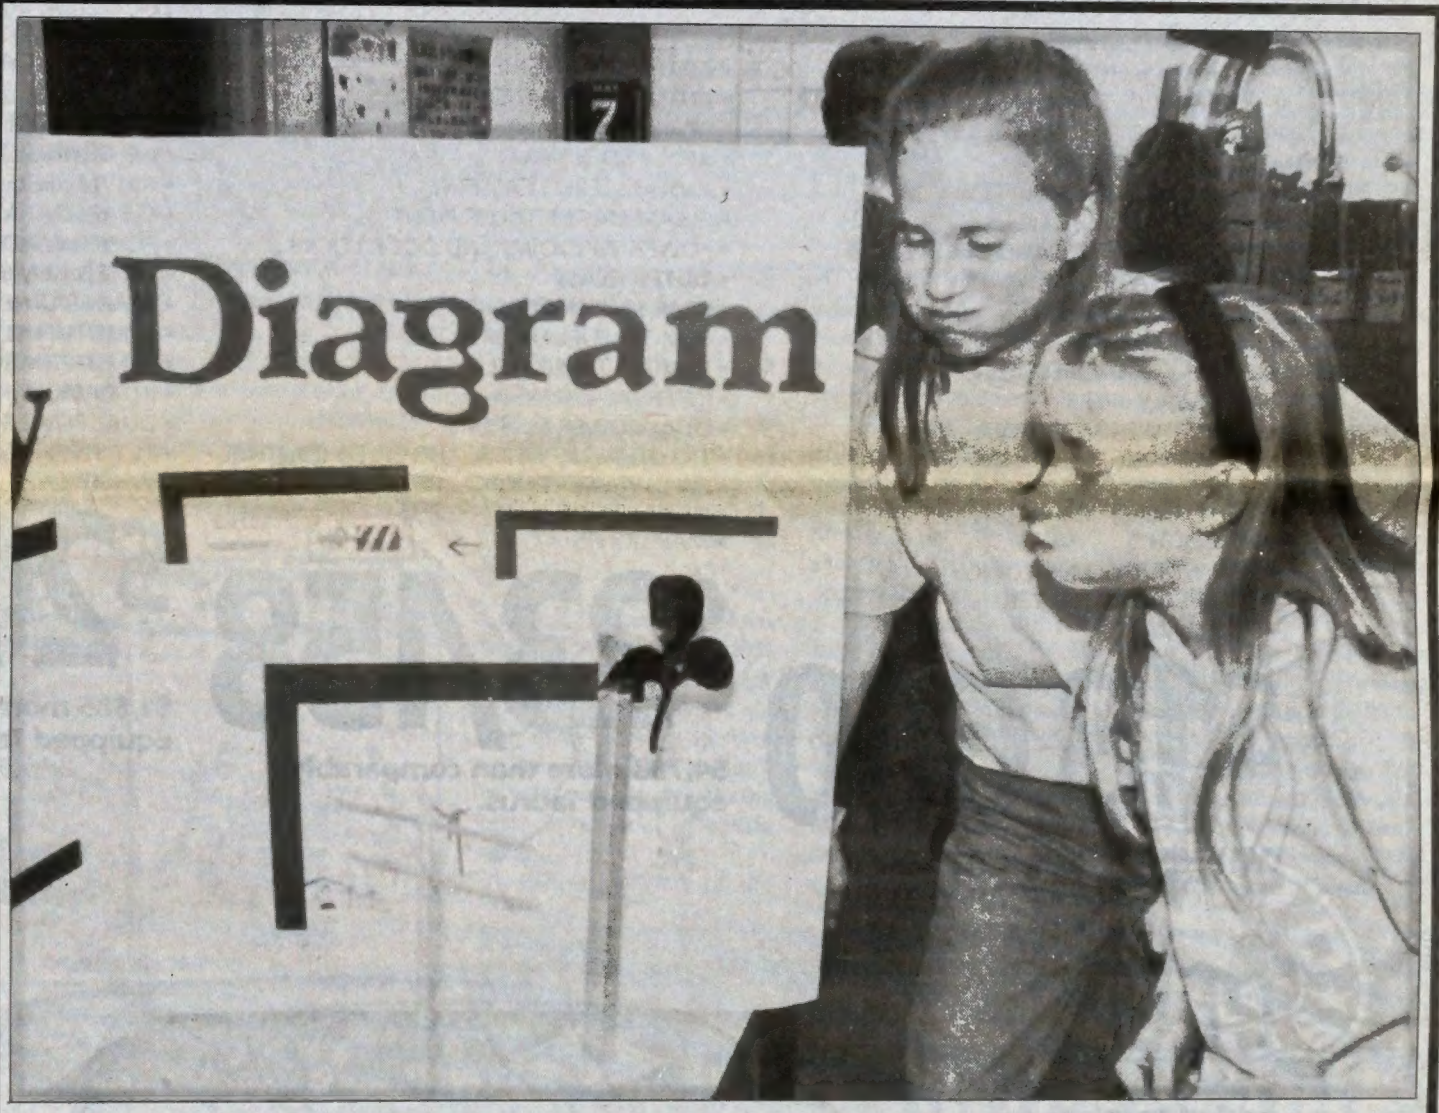
Flemming wasn't present in court when the decision was made, so he doesn't know why the case was dismissed. Conservation Officer Dave Ferguson, who investigated the incident and was present in court, was unavailable for comment because he was not in the office on Friday.

The trial dragged on for two years. In January of 1991, Ferguson told the court the washout was caused by a large amount of water which collected in the excavation from run-off during a thaw.

Ferguson said silt was washed across the road, before eventually leading into the river. He also said Bradamore and Hughes later installed filter cloths to stop the flow of silt after they were contacted by the ministry.

If convicted, either of the accused could have faced fines up to $50,000.

Flemming said the ministry will discuss with its attorney whether or not the matter will be appealed.



Blowing in the wind

Jennifer Orpana and Kristy Bye demonstrate how wind can be used as an alternative source of energy in their project during last Friday's Energy Fair at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

Archie Stouffer students look at alternate sources of energy

by Susan Grober

Have you ever seen a solar oven that could cook a hot dog?

Students of class 6B at Archie Stouffer Elementary School demonstrated this and several other alternative energy source projects during their Energy Fair, held in the school library last Friday.

The solar oven was constructed by Trevor White, Chris Little and Jason Horsley. Tin foil was used to reflect sunlight into the oven, which is painted black inside to absorb the heat and cook the food.

For their demonstration, the boys cooked a hot dog outside the school.

"We had to move the oven every 10 to 15 minutes to keep it in the sun, said Chris, who sampled the hot dog.

"It was pretty good," he said. "It took us 75 minutes to cook it."

"But it was also winter," adds Trevor, of why the hot dog took so long to heat up.

Trevor said they plan to try out the oven again, and cook foods "like cookies, and we might even try pizza, but I don't think it will work."

"But we're going to do it in the summer," said Jason.

St. Joseph's board will consider how to cut costs of local facilities cial government, Ontario hospitals are being squeezed for cash.

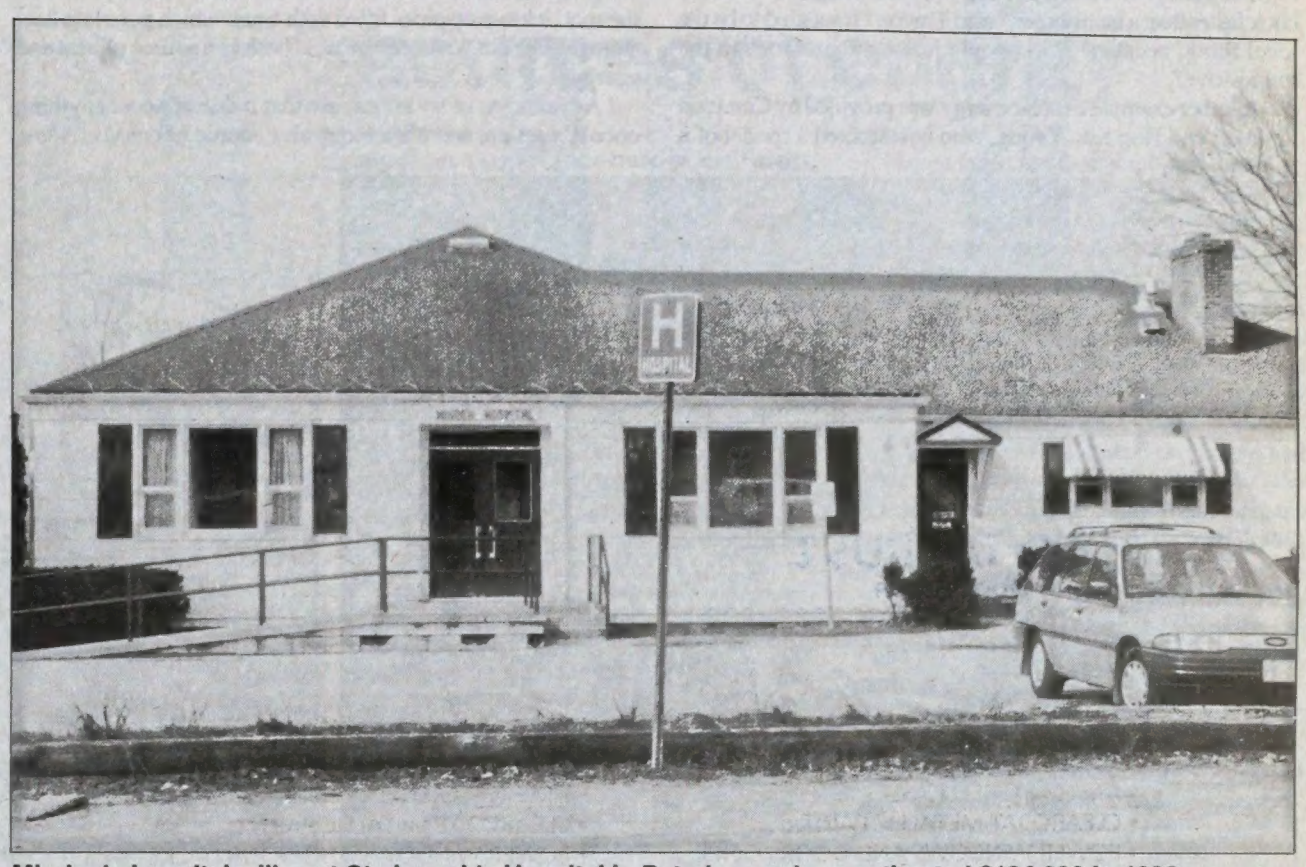
Although St. Joseph's is not experiencing the same level of crisis as some other hospitals, some of which have had to close beds and reduce staff, Lussing says the board would like to see the two Haliburton County hospitals become self-sufficient.

Until now, the cost of subsidizing the operation of the Minden and Haliburton hospitals has not been an issue because St. Joseph's has had the ability to absorb the cost in its overall budget.

"It was part of the deal when we took on the responsibility for the two hospitals," said Lussing. "But now we're trying to pare down our costs and we have to take a look whether we want to continue subsidizing their operation."

In the past, Lussing says the Minden and Haliburton hospital have been insulated from tough financial decisions and haven't been asked to endure the same cutbacks and adjustments as the parent hospital in Peterborough.

"That's not possible in the future," he said. "Some pain has to be felt everywhere."



Minden's hospital will cost St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough an estimated $124,000 in 1992.

Lussing would not say what form that "pain" may take for Minden and Haliburton. The issue is being considered by a fiscal advisory committee and specific options will not be released until recommendations come before the full board of directors next month.

The St. Joseph's board faces a daunting challenge in trying to trim a total of $270,000 from the operating cost of the Minden and Haliburton hospitals without affecting service or reducing staff.

"It's tough," says Lussing. "When you're dealing with two small facilities, arguably the smallest hospitals in Ontario, there are not very many halfway measures you can take. There is a limit of what you can do with the budgets without affecting staff.

"Three quarters of the costs are staffing costs. We're very sensitive to that, we want to provide a level of security for the staff."

The issue has been discussed by the fiscal advisory committee and there have been suggestions that Minden and Haliburton hospitals should be sharing more resources to reduce costs.

But Lussing admits that these measures will only produce "nickel and dime savings" and will not save the $270,000 St. Joseph's is looking for.

Using last year's figures and allowing for inflation, Minden Hospital is expected to have operating costs of $1.3 million and revenue of $1.19 million in 1992, leaving a shortfall of $124,000.

The Haliburton Hospital is expected to have operating costs of $1.8 million and revenue of $1.65 million leaving a shortfall of $146,000.

"Clearly the day has come when we have to look closely at our ability to sustain these subsidies," said Lussing. "Its come to the point where there are some tough decisions to make."

The fiscal advisory committee is presenting its findings to the community advisory committee this week and the issue will be brought before the board of directors.

The sun, wind and earth all provide energy

They chose to cook a hot dog because "we knew it would cook faster than a hamburger," said Trevor. "It seemed to be the ideal thing, because most people just nuke hot dogs in the microwave."

Another example of solar energy was provided by Cameron Leonard and Hop Kor Yeung, who constructed a model of a solar-powered house out of cardboard and construction paper.

They explained that when the heat hits the solar panels on the roof, it heats up pipes filled with water which goes into heat storage. The hot water can be used both as a source of heat and energy.

Advantages of solar heat are that it doesn't cost anything once it's set up, and it's a renewable source of energy. A disadvantage is that a backup source of energy is sometimes needed.

Cheryl Smith and Alyna Reesor did their project on geothermal energy, and showed how heat generated from the centre of the Earth can be used as an alternative energy source.

In a jar, the pair showed the different layers of matter, starting at the magma (or centre of the Earth), which create a geyser.

Hop Kor Yeung and Cameron Leonard use thermometers to demonstrate how water in a tin pan painted black on the bottom heats up faster than a pan without paint. The pair also constructed a house out of cardboard to illustrate how solar heat is utilized as an alternative energy source.

After looking around the house for materials, they ended up using such food products as brown sugar, corn starch, and Sugar Crisp cereal for their unique project. Alyna's mother and father own the Ox Narrow's Lodge, so they had access to different foods which they layered in the jar.

To top it all off, they filled a plastic honey dispenser with flour, hooked it up to the jar, and squeezed it to simulate a burst of steam from the geyser.

They also used several pieces from the game of Life.

Fellow students and teachers jotted down such comments as "excellent model" and "wicked demonstration" on a sheet of paper for opinions on the project.

Kristy Bye and Jennifer Orpana's project on wind energy featured a model of a house hooked up to a type of windmill, made up of blades sitting on top of a tower.

Kristy said the wind goes through the blades of the windmill and turns the turbine, which activates the generator.

Jennifer explained that the first windmill was made in France, and added that wind farms today "create humongous amounts of energy."

Advantages are that wind provides a renewable and free source of energy. Disadvantages include that wind is unpredictable, the blades could break, and the windmills cost a lot of money to build.

Teacher Debbie Wales said the students have been researching sources of energy for the past two months, and have been looking at alternative sources, such as wind, solar and geothermal.

"We do a unit in Grade 6 on energy, and instead of just reading it out of a book, I decided to have them do these projects and make it come alive," says teacher Debbie Wales. "They seem to really enjoy it."

In addition, the class studied more traditional energy sources, and compared the advantages and disadvantages of the different methods used to generate energy.

"We also looked at the environmental factors, and found which are non-polluting and which are polluting," said Wales. "They found that solar, wind and geothermal are much better alternatives, although there are some drawbacks."

Groups of students came up with projects demonstrating the alternative energy sources, and each included a simulation to show how the sources work.

Time to decide

Within the next couple of weeks, some important decisions are going to be made which will affect the delivery of health care services in Haliburton County.

Faced with severe cutbacks in provincial funding, St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough, which owns the Minden and Haliburton hospitals, is looking for ways to reduce the money it spends to cover the deficits of the two small facilities.

While St. Joseph's executive director Frank Lussing is attempting to reassure us that any changes will not be "draconian" in nature, and should not result in noticeable reductions in service, he also says that there is very little opportunity to recover the $270,000 the hospital is looking for by making nickel and dime adjustments.

The challenge for Haliburton County is to use this situation as an opportunity to address the local system of health care delivery and give serious consideration to assuming more responsibility and control. Currently, the county's health care system is fragmented among the various service providers and levels of government. The county government manages Hyland Crest senior citizen's home; the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden manages the ambulance service; St. Joseph's Hospital, which is owned by the Sisters of St. Joseph, own and operate the two local hospitals; and a newly formed committee of local people has been given the task of developing the county's long-term health, housing and social services.

But if all the pieces could be brought together under local control and management, unnecessary duplication could be eliminated, financial resources could be directed where they are most needed and decision could be made solely on the basis of the needs and priorities of county residents.

Instead of placing the provision of health care in the hands of a distant bureaucracy and being forced to endure the uncertainty that is bred by that kind of dependency, we could take responsibility for our own requirements.

Taking over the hospitals in Haliburton and Minden would not be cheap - using St. Joseph's figures we can assume that it would cost taxpayers an additional $270,000 this year - and there will be those who argue that Haliburton County can not afford to pay for its own facilities. But judging from the direction St. Joseph's Hospital is heading , no one else can afford to pay for them either.

And when you consider the 18 beds at the two hospitals, the 62 beds at Hyland Crest and the 30 long-term care beds promised by the provincial government, we already have the basis for an institutional system which, if managed and coordinated by a local authority, could be truly responsive to the county's needs and priorities.

But unless we are willing to take that important first step of getting involved and showing a willingness to take more responsibility, then the decisions will continue to be made for us instead of by us.

Why would you hunt a fox?

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

The average full-grown red fox (Vulpes vulpes) weighs less than 15 pounds and measures a little over four feet from wet black nose to the tip of his long fluffy tail.

Terror-wise, the red fox is distinctly bad news for rabbits, squirrels, partridges, mice and voles — plus the odd domestic chicken is he can find one. But the fox is no threat to any human and he's certainly no match for a dog. Any dog. Even a Pekinese or Pomeranian.

Which makes you wonder why the British feel it's necessary, every year, to unleash 20,000 specially trained hunting dogs and 50,000 mounted horsemen with no other purpose than to scare up foxes, hunt them down and rip them to shreds.

The fox hunt. "The unspeakable in pursuit of the uneatable" Oscar Wilde called it. There are more than 300 packs of hunting dogs in England. They take part in about 200 'hunts' which run down and tear apart 8,000 to 13,000 foxes each year.

Not all Britons approve, naturally. In fact, 80 percent of them would like to relegate the sport to the same oblivion occupied by bull-baiting, cock-fighting and witch-burning.

Victorian Order of Nurses will honour volunteers

The Victorian Order of Nurses, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Branch is planning an evening to recognize their volunteers on April 29.

Over the past 13 years 123 people throughout the three counties have given voluntarily of their time and talents to assist the VON in a variety of services in the Branch.

We have five volunteers who help us out with clerical duties in the three nursing offices.

The Adult Day Care Centre in Victoria County (Lindsay) had 28 volunteers and the Peterborough Centre had 32 volunteers helping in a variety of ways to provide a program, for adults and frail elderly people who attended the Centres.

Throughout the three counties there are 24 clinics providing foot care for seniors. One or two volunteers assist in each clinic which means 58 people have helped to make these clinics successful.

A total of 7,401 hours has been provided to the organization by the volunteers. The monetary value of these hours equals $59,208. A significant contribution which allows VON to provide their services cost effectively in your community.

VON thanks each volunteer for their commitment to our services and for their participation in "Caring For Life".

The Victorian Order of Nurses Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Branch would like to thank all of the individuals and service groups who have generously donated to VON's Financial Campaign 1991/92. Through your support, VON was able to realize its financial goal of $125,000. It is with these donated dollars that VON can maintain and enhance its community programs.

VON would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge the following service organizations who have made a financial commitment to support their community Foot Care Clinics.

Pressure increases to stop the barbaric fox hunt

Back in February, a bill to abolish fox hunting was only narrowly defeated in the British Parliament.

When you think about it, what kind of Cro Magnon could possibly argue in favour of such a barbaric pastime? Who would actually choose to spend their weekends (and several thousand pounds) on the back of some huge horse while dressed in drag, crashing through trees and over fences, trying to run a 15-pound animal to death?

Well, someone like Maxwell Rumney, certainly. He is a master of the Trinity Foot Beagles, a group of hunt fanciers who have galumphed over the hills and dales of Cambridgeshire since 1862.

"We simply are out to watch the hounds work, for the thrill of the chase," explains Rumney.

Codswallop. Unhappily for fox hunters, technology has caught up with them. Last fall, an anti-hunting activist with a concealed video camera managed to infiltrate the Quorn — the most blue-blooded of England's hunts. As a result we now know what really happens when the fox, exhausted, 'goes to earth'.

What happens — as the video camera showed — is that two-legged hunters dig the terrified animal out of its den, grab it by the scruff of its neck and throw it, alive, to the slavering hounds which rip it to pieces.

"Only the huntsmen used to see what went on, said a spokesman. This time, all of Britain saw it as the film was run on national television. Within a week, more than 2,000 indignant citizens had joined the swelling ranks of the League Against Cruel Sports.

LACS is just one group that's sprung up to try and bury the fox hunt once and for all. There's also a crew called the Hunt Saboteurs Association. They crash the hunts while they're in progress, laying false scents to throw off the hounds and blowing fake 'Tally Ho's to confuse the hunters.

Naturally the "squirearchy" is incensed. They see themselves as beset upon by Philistines and Bolsheviks.

"They feel that we should get rid of tradition at the drop of a hat," harrumphs Maxwell Rumney.

Which reminds me of the great riposte by Winston Churchill. When he was secretary of the Navy, Churchill made a proposal which offended one of his American advisors. "But sir," said the Admiral, "your proposal goes against naval tradition."

Naval tradition?" growled Churchill, "What is naval tradition? Rum, sodomy and the lash!"

Maybe the Brits could swing a deal here. The fox hunters give up terrorizing small defenseless animals. In return, British Parliament enshrines the right of Mister Rumney and his friends to indulge in unlimited booze, buggery and beating each other with whips.

KRCA seeks Somerville council's support

by Jerry Grozelle

Although only a small part of Somerville Township is within the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority's (KRCA) boundaries, the Authority claims it can be of benefit to the township.

KRCA General Manager Ian Macnab and Trish Gillman, who has been conducting the flood plain mapping of the area, made a presentation to Somerville Council at the last meeting. Macnab explained that the KRCA is concerned with water management, flooding and erosion.

"Placement and removal of fill can have an impact on flooding," he told council. "The Conservation Authority Act is the only legislation that can prohibit alteration of property within flood plain areas."

Macnab is looking expand the area of responsibility of the KRCA and to do that he is seeking support from Somerville Township. Somerville is already a member of the Authority, with a representative who serves on the KRCA Board of Directors.

As a member, the township pays an annual levy, which in 1992 was $1,431. But so far, the township has chosen not to confer the necessary power to the Authority so it can enforce its mandate.

Ideally, Macnab would like to see the KRCA expand its range to include the entire Burnt River watershed and possibly as far north as the Village of Haliburton. "It would take the onus, to a certain extent, off the Township regarding planning along the water course," he explained.

The flood plain mapping which has been done within Somerville's boundaries closely corresponds to the Township's O-1 (hazard land) designation.

"The regulations are permissive in nature," Gillman explained. She said that the KRCA would be responsible to make sure there would be no detrimental interference to the flow of the water course. The KRCA is also concerned about diversions or alterations of watercourses. Anyone wishing to build any kind of structure within the flood plain area would be required to consult the KRCA.

In most cases, a site inspection would be done and Authority personnel would make recommendations as to whether the site was permissible or what modifications would be necessary. Macnab pointed out that any applicant who didn't agree with the Authority's assessment could appeal to the KRCA Board of Directors. If the Board was to uphold the original decision, the applicant would have the recourse of an appeal to the Provincial Mining and Lands Commissioner, who has the final say in such matters.

"We are there to work with the people," Macnab said. "Our responsibility is to see that they don't get themselves or others into trouble."

It was apparent that council was apprehensive about granting the KRCA any authority that might further restrict any development within Somerville's borders.

"We need all the buildings we can get," said Reeve John Huke. Councillor Clayton Cameron pointed out that only a small portion of Somerville Township falls within the boundaries of the KRCA's jurisdiction and that the area was not within the critical flood zone.

Macnab agreed that the current area is "not predominantly flood sensitive or susceptible", but if the Authority was to expand it would not only strengthen the township's O-1 designation, it would also shift the responsibility from the township to the KRCA should a flood occur that affected properties the Authority had approved.

"We wouldn't be committing them (the township) to anything," Macnab said after the meeting. "But it would be nice to be able to go to the Province with unanimous support." The KRCA is currently negotiating with other municipalities within its borders (the Town of Lindsay, Emily Township and others) to strengthen its mandate and get support for its proposed expansion.

In the meantime, Somerville Township will seek the advice of Leon Wright, its representative on the KRCA Board. Wright, a former council member, will be invited to the next meeting to present his views on the subject.

Hockey players hang up blades for another season

With grass turning green outside the window of the community centre and crocuses pushing their heads through the soil, the members of the Minden Minor Hockey Association gathered one more time this season. The event was the annual banquet and awards presentation held Saturday afternoon. Each of the teams involved in the year's action was in attendance and the players were introduced to the audience as they received a trophy marking their participation.

It was announced that Minor Hockey association president Brian Shaw would be stepping down as head of the organization. Ken Casey will be the new president of the group. Shaw paid tribute the efforts of the executive. He noted it was never an easy job to meet the needs of everyone involved in the sport. "But, we're all here for just one reason....what is best for the kids." Shaw urged the membership to give the new president all the support they can in the coming year.

Prior to the introduction of the teams, Shaw also paid tribute to a number of sponsors and supporters who had been of assistance during the past year. In particular, he named Ray Downs of Double D Catering, Jim Vanderlip of Miner's Bay Plumbing, Dollo's IGA, the Coby Islanders hockey team, Alt Dairy and Sealtest Ice Cream and Kawartha Dairy. A special note of appreciation was also given to Robin Flood, a young person who worked for the association throughout the year taking the admissions at the door.

Shaw also presented, what he described at the "President's Award" to the individuals who had invested a great deal of time and effort in the organization this past year. He announced the recognition would go to Ken and Debbie Casey. "They worked so hard for Minor Hockey they were considering changing their phone number to the arena's number," Shaw joked as he introduced the couple. The announcement of the award was greeted with a hearty round of applause from those in attendance.

Following the brief presentations, the teams were introduced. (We are unable to present all the team photos this week. See next week's Times for more Minor Hockey photographs.)

Congratulatory messages were received from Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, MP Bill Scott and County Warden George Simmons. While she enjoyed the gathering, Dora said the one drawback was the fact that all the recognition denied her the chance to keep her age a secret.

Legion elections set for May 6

For Your Service

by Georgina Deeks

Well comrades, we really are into spring. Elections coming up May 6th with a potluck at 6 p.m., so mark your calendar and come out and use your right to vote. Also, please come with your favourite salad, casserole or dish.

Fish & chips and ham roll night was very successful, with an enjoyable meal and a ham roll afterwards. Some winners were Don Burch, John Warren, Jane Graham, Terry Campbell, Sharon Sykes and yours truly.

Canada 125 day steak dinner and dance coming May 23. Time 6:30 p.m. Tickets will be on sale at the bar on election night. Sixty tickets being sold so get yours early and don't be disappointed.

Incidentally Comrades, Canada 125 is being celebrated by the legion here in Minden on June 14 with our friends and neighbours from this and surrounding communities. We expect to be hosting a horseshoe tournament that day and the Haliburton Branch Pipe & Drums from Branch 129 will be entertaining us with their Scottish music. So come one come all and help Branch 636 celebrate.

Trivia night is May 20. Come one, come all. Test your skills and be a part of this fun evening.

All going well, your Blue Beret Bulletin should be off the press and waiting for you to pick up in the lobby.

Angler/hunter licencing under review

Natural Resources Minister Bud Wildman recently released, for public comment, a draft report entitled Fishing and Hunting Licence Review.

The report, which focuses on fee structures and types of licences, is the result of consultation with major interest groups and neighbouring jurisdictions, and a questionnaire completed by a representative sampling of licence-issuers.

"We want to streamline and improve the current system for fishing and hunting licences as much as possible and I think this document has some good ideas on how we can do that," said Wildman.

"Now that we have some recommendations for people to consider, we want comments from the public before finalizing and implementing any changes. I am particularly interested in public input on the proposed introduction of a new conservation fishing licence," the minister said.

The conservation licence, proposed in the report, would allow anglers to pay a reduced fee if they agree to reduced catch limits. It would not only reduce the harvest of fish across the province but foster support for conservation of Ontario's fisheries resource.

It is recommended that the current wildlife licence structure be maintained, with minor changes to remove or combine some licences.

The report also recommends the introduction of an identification card for resident hunters and anglers. Validation stickers could be placed on this credit-card-style identification card, replacing some current paper licences.

The report suggests that all licence fees be revised annually to reflect cost of living increases and that they include the federal Goods and Services Tax (GST).

There will be a two-month public review period for the Fishing and Hunting Licence Review report. Copies of the report may be obtained from the ministry's Natural Resources Information Centre, Room M1-73, Macdonald Block, 900 Bay Street, Toronto, M7A 2C1, telephone (416) 314-1177 or (416) 314-2225, or local MNR district offices.

Public comments must be forwarded by June 12, 1992 to the Director, Fisheries Policy Branch, 90 Sheppard Avenue East, North York, Ontario M2N 3A1. The report will be issued in August

Everyone's mother

Lacking a sense of reverence

Reflections

by David Suzuki

The late Nisga'a Chief, James Gosnell, one of the great leaders of Canada's First Nations, once told me about his first encounter with modern logging.

He had been walking through the forest when he suddenly came across a vast clearing in which every tree had been cut and the ground was gashed and littered with stumps and slash. "I couldn't breathe" he said, "it was as if the land had been skinned of life. I couldn't believe that anyone would deliberately do that to the Earth."

Foresters admit a clearcut is "not a pretty sight" but then tell us that people respond too emotionally or irrationally because it soon "greens up." Gosnell's response to the clearcut was immediate and visceral and as I learned later, flowed from a very different relationship with the land.

During the Settlement Feast for his funeral, people described the extent of James' territory in great detail. The rivers, mountains, forests and every rock are inextricably entwined in the history, culture and identity of James and his people.

Nisga'a land is sacred and any human action taken without the proper respect and reverence is a desecration, a profanity. James didn't have to justify his reaction to the clear-cut because he knew that what he had witnessed was not a way to treat an ecosystem.

Critics of forestry practices or polluting industries are often accused of being too emotional or zealous to have a credible opinion. A respected scientist and university professor recently told me environmentalism has become a religion. Somehow these criticisms are supposed to discredit environmentalists or diminish their concerns.

In fact, one reason the global eco-crisis is worsening, from holes in the ozone layer to vanishing northern cod, polluted ground water and disappearing forests, is the absence of any sense of reverence, awe and gratitude before the vast forces of nature.

We have become so puffed up with pride in our technological prowess, our computer-amplified intelligence and the transcendent importance of economics, that we have reduced the underpinnings of life itself - air, water, soil, other life forms - to the status of mere commodities for our species' use.

Indigenous people refer to "Mother Earth" whose fertility and nourishment are the source of all life in terms of respect and humility. We, non-native people, don't do that. Although "Mother Nature" is a term used in literature, it is laden with pejorative overtones that discourage a serious discussant from using it lest she/he be dismissed as an ecoflake. So we scrub every trace of the sacred or the profane from our discourse about the global biosphere.

But now prominent scientists are calling for a new attitude and covenant with nature, with words seldom used in science. Albert Einstein evoked reverence: "One cannot but be in awe when (one) contemplates the mysteries of eternity, of life, of the marvelous structure of reality. It is enough if one tries to merely comprehend a little of this mystery each day. Never lose a holy curiosity."

For the global ecocrisis, says Stanford ecologist Paul Ehrlich: "... a quasi-religious movement, one concerned with the need to change the values that now govern much of human activity, is essential to the persistence of our civilization."

Harvard biologist and tropical expert, E.O. Wilson has coined the term biophilia, meaning "love of life," to describe the needed spiritual attitude to which Ehrlich alludes while Nobel laureate George Wald suggests we must realize "all of life is akin, and our kinship is much closer than we had ever imagined."

Nobel laureate Barbara McClintock is highly emotional about her work: "I know every plant in the field. I know them intimately, and I find a great pleasure to know them. (A scientist simply must develop) a feeling for the organism." Anthropologist, Loren Eisley, wrote: "Modern man, the world eater, respects no space and no thing green or furred as sacred. The march of machines has entered his blood."

Recently, dozens of renowned scientists signed a statement for Preserving and Cherishing the Earth: "as scientists, many of us have had profound experiences of awe and reverence before the universe. We understand that what is regarded as sacred is more likely to be treated with care and respect. Our planetary home should be regarded. Efforts to safeguard and cherish the environment need to be infused with a vision of the sacred."

Nursing a sick economy

Drainville Diary
A report from Queen's Park
With Dennis Drainville, MPP

Today, there is no subject more important to the people of Ontario than getting our economy back to health. To that end, we are determined to invest in the people and economy of Ontario.

The speech from the Throne to open the second session of the 35th Parliament of Ontario was read by the new Lieutenant Governor, Henry Jackman on April 6, 1992.

The speech outlined an investment strategy for the province in business and jobs, to meet the challenges of the recession, a changing world economy and federal government policies.

The New Democratic government cannot by itself solve every economic problem. But neither can we rely on others to fix our economic circumstances. We must do what we can ourselves. And my government has already launched an economic renewal plan and investment strategy to build a stronger future in this time of change.

For instance, last year we announced the Anti-Recession Fund to help stimulate construction and provide jobs for Ontarions. That fund was used to get much needed projects built throughout the province. In the riding of Victoria-Haliburton alone over 8 million dollars was pumped into the economy. That money was above the regular funding the Ontario government provides.

That extra money went into projects like upgrades at Ross Memorial Hospital, reconstruction of important roads such as River Road in Ops Township and Highway 121 in Fenelon Township. Algonquin Park and Bark Lake Centre among others, also received extra funds for improvements and developments. This is an example of how the New Democratic government has been working to stimulate our economy. That work is still continuing and this year, as outlined in our speech from the Throne we will be tackling new problems and coming up with creative solutions.

We said we would act to preserve public services despite reduction in federal government support by implementing stringent financial measures. (Ottawa's cut backs at the federal level will cost Ontario tax-payers an extra $4.5 billion this year.)

Some of the highlights in the speech from the Throne include:

Ways to help businesses:

* Programs to assist smaller businesses
* Working with representatives of key sectors of the economy to improve Ontario's skills and training
* Assist in developing made-in-Ontario products
* Commitment to our agriculture investments, following on the Commodity Loan Guarantee Program recently announced
* Programs to conserve energy aimed at businesses and homes
* Reforms to legislation covering co-operative and credit unions that will assist small business and community investment

Help for municipalities:

* Increased flexibility for municipalities to borrow and invest
* Tackling the backlog at the Ontario Municipal Board
* Assisting some construction projects through the various regulations and Ministry approvals
* Reform the environmental assessment process
* Revise the Condominium Act, the Planning Act and the Building Code to stimulate construction projects.

Ways for getting people back to work:

* More child care spaces for lower-income workers
* Training strategies for hard hit industries such as steel and auto manufacturers
* Establishing the Ontario Training and Adjustment Board to provide for training and re-training workers
* Training for those on social assistance or UIC to help them to get back to work

And for the first time, your government is making the speech from the Throne accessible to everyone. A copy may be ordered free of charge by writing to: Throne Speech, Ministry of Government Services, P.O. Box 995, Station F, Toronto, Ont., M4Y 2N9.

International honours

At the International Order of the Golden Rule Convention held in Chicago from April 12 to 15, Gord Monk of the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home was selected as one of the three provincial and state chairmans covering Canada and the USA to receive the award of excellence for his contribution to the association and Funeral services in general. Each state in the USA has its own chairman and Canada has 4 provincial chairmans. Gord's responsibilities cover Ontario and Manitoba. O.G.R. represents over 1400 funeral homes world wide and their objective is to improve and upgrade the standards among the independently owned funeral homes.

Funds available for home renovations

Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation has been allocated funds for the Home Adaptations for Seniors' Independence Program (HASI). This is a two year experimental program intended to assess whether minor home adaptations can prolong the length of time that seniors can live independently in their homes.

One time grants of up to $2500 are available to qualified seniors. These grants can be used to make permanent minor home adaptations so that seniors can enjoy a higher quality of living. These adaptations include things like relocating light switches, installing lever door handles, providing grab bars and slip-resistant finishes in bathrooms and showers, hazard warning lights or handrails in halls and stairways.

During recent CMHC sponsored housing conferences across Canada and during public consultations about CMHC's Residential Rehabilitation Programs (RRAP) seniors identified a great need for this type of help.

People who have homes that need extensive changes such as wider doorways and increased space for wheelchair movement, would be directed to RRAP for the Disabled as opposed to this program.

If you or a family member would like more information about HASI or RRAP programs, please call the Peterborough CMHC Office at (705) 743-3584.

Bunnies adds to Easter cheer

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Saturday, April 11 Dianna Morris continued reading and Mary Guillemin came Sunday to have reading at one o' clock. We thank both Dianna and Mary especially for helping us spend the weekend.

Monday, as Doris Robertson was having a week's holiday, we followed the usual schedule. In the evening Tom McAllister came and showed films, "The Great Grey Owl" and "Roy the Sheep Dog". It is nice having Tom back again and we thank him.

Tuesday Chapel Service was conducted by Rev. Brian Parker. This was a communion service for which we thank Rev. Parker sincerely.

Tuesday afternoon we had a card party organized by Pearl Cowan, with one table of crokinole. We had a very happy afternoon. Thank you Pearl Cowan, Jeanne Sears and Helen Skelding.

The following afternoon Jock Mavor came for an afternoon of beautiful music. He usually plays his guitar, but Wednesday he played an Omnichord his wife had given him for Christmas. He played a lot of the beautiful Irish and Scotch songs and the wonderful song "Gethsemane". We are so fortunate to be able to have him come, Jock has so many commitments. Thank you Jock, greatly.

Thursday was Tea Party day. The ladies from Haliburton United Church provided and served the delicious tea. Lena Roberts, Marie Roberts, Eleanor Holmes and Lyn Thompson were our hostesses. When we finished our tea we looked up and suddenly there were two bunnies hopping from table to table, each carrying a basket of Easter egg candies. Soon we recognized Linda Fry and Llyn Shirley. We thank Linda, Llyn and the United Church ladies for their thoughtfulness.

In the evening we had bingo with Nancy and Troy Briggs calling for us. We certainly appreciate them coming.

Good Friday we had a hymn sing. Marion Irwin played the piano and we sang, led by Grace Coburn and refreshments were served by Marion and a couple of friends. We thank these ladies very much.

Pearl Lyle has had a lot of family visitors lately.
